

Synapse

Home Terms Privacy Support

 Add to Discord

Terms of Service

Effective October 8, 2026

Download PDF

These terms govern use of Synapse, the hosted Discord bot operated by Landon (“we”, “us”). By inviting Synapse, running its commands, or paying for a subscription, you agree to these terms and to Discord’s own Terms of Service and Community Guidelines. If you do not agree, remove the bot from your server.

1. The Service

Synapse is a hub-and-spoke staff bot. A public community server is a Spoke. A private staff server is a Hub. Standalone mode uses one server as both. Spoke traffic is routed to the Hub triage channel, and staff actions taken in the Hub are applied back in the Spoke. Hub administrators approve or deny Spoke link requests. A 6-character link code identifies the Hub. Rotating that code does not disconnect Spokes that are already linked.

Setup, staff, leave, settings, and most ticket actions run through slash commands, modals, and message components. Synapse also uses Discord’s Message Content intent only for channels stored as open tickets, so typed messages and attachments can be mirrored between the member thread and the Hub triage thread. It does not read ordinary chat outside those ticket channels.

2. Eligibility

You must be allowed to use Discord and to add bots to a server. Adding Synapse, approving a Spoke, or changing staff roles requires permission in that server, normally Administrator for setup and settings. You are responsible for the configuration you choose, including which channel receives triage and which roles count as staff.

3. Acceptable Use

You may not use Synapse to break Discord’s rules or the law, to harass people, to probe or disrupt the bot, or to share a Hub link code with servers you do not administer. Staff actions such as hire and fire must follow the permission levels configured on the Hub. We may refuse a link request, revoke a link, or remove the bot from a server that abuses the service.

4. Subscriptions and Billing

The first public release of the official hosted bot is free. Every Hub gets the current feature set. Spoke caps, concurrent ticket caps, and log-retention limits are not enforced yet. Paid plans, when billing is turned on, will be billed off Discord through a Stripe payment link. Discord’s in-app monetization is not used. The later tier model for the hosted service is:

Tier	Price	Spokes	Tickets	Logs
Starter	$0	1	5 concurrent	7 days
Growth	$5	2	25 concurrent	30 days
Network	$12	5	100 concurrent	90 days
Enterprise	$25–$30	Unlimited	Unlimited	Permanent
Bespoke	Custom	Isolated	Custom	Custom

When those limits are enforced, Spoke limits will count external community servers only. A Standalone server’s link to itself will not use a Spoke slot. Growth may also be granted for a referral installation or a pooled Top.gg vote month, as described in the bot when those programs open. Enterprise may include custom embed colors, CSV export, and a daily AI compute cap. Bespoke is a separate arrangement, not a self-serve checkout.

Subscriptions apply only to the official hosted bot. The source is published under the Synapse Source License for inspection. That publication is not a support agreement and not an offer to run your own production instance.

5. Availability

Synapse is provided as available. There is no uptime guarantee and no support SLA for the public tiers. Staff may request a private AI summary of a ticket with `/ticket summary`; that feature may change. Planned growth features such as Top.gg voting rewards and paid tier enforcement may ship later. We may suspend the bot for maintenance, abuse, or Discord platform limits.

6. Your Content and Our License

You keep ownership of server configuration and staff records you submit through commands. You grant us a limited license to store and process that data only to operate Synapse, as described in the Privacy Policy. We do not claim ownership of your Discord messages. Message content from open ticket threads may be mirrored, stored for transcripts, and—when someone runs `/ticket summary`—sent to Google’s Gemini API for that request only.

7. Termination

You may remove Synapse from a server at any time. We may stop providing the bot to a server that violates these terms or Discord’s terms. Removing the bot does not by itself delete every database row immediately. Retention follows the privacy policy and the log window of the active tier.

8. Disclaimers and Limitation of Liability

Synapse is provided “as is.” We disclaim warranties of merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, and non-infringement, to the extent the law allows. We are not responsible for moderation decisions your staff make with the bot, for Discord outages, or for loss of access when a role sits above the bot in the server role list.

To the extent the law allows, our total liability for a claim about Synapse is limited to the amount you paid us for the bot in the three months before the claim, or fifty US dollars if you paid nothing. We are not liable for indirect or consequential damages.

9. Changes to These Terms

We may update these terms by posting a new version on this page and changing the effective date. Continued use after that date is acceptance of the updated terms. If a change is material, we will also note it in the bot's documentation command when practical.

10. Contact

Questions about these Terms may be directed to Discord user zerge5757 or raised in the Synapse Support server. These are the only official contact channels.

Synapse

A staff bot for Discord. One server is enough. A separate staff server works when the community and the staff should stay apart.

Resources

Support Server

Legal

Terms of Service Privacy Policy

© 2026 Synapse